Administration

The Class of 1945 will be remembered as one of the World War II classes that suffered severely in numerical strength. Only seventy per cent of the normal strength graduated due to war conditions. Many left school in their Sophomore and Junior years to go into war plants. Some enlisted, others were drafted. We feel the man-power shortage in the upper classes and hope this this conflict will soon cease so that oncoming classes may return to normal enrollments!

The members of '45 have my sincere and heartfelt wishes for a successful journey through life. May they ever cherish our mottoes: "Live to Learn" and "Learn to Live."

Respectfully yours,

G. H. Martin

It is with a sense of mingled regret and happiness that I submit this word of farewell. It is with regret that I approach the day when we must sever our friendly associations as seniors and adviser. However, I rejoice in the privilege of witnessing the occasion of your graduation. This is evidence of one of the greatest achievements of your life and we trust you are now prepared to go "Out of school life into life's school."

Respectfully,

C. A. Wentz

You're very dear to me.

Class Poem

By CHARMAINE ZIMMERMAN

We've reached the peak in our school life
And leave behind memories dear,
Recollections of youthful pleasures,
And days of happy cheer.
In September of nineteen forty
With hearts and spirits high,
Proud of our lofty position,
We entered West York High.
After four years of endeavor,
With knowledge we've gained as a tool,
We humbly look into the future:
Out of school's life and into life's school.
Of course, our class has grown smaller
For war has taken its toll,
And many names once so familiar
No longer remain on our roll.
Each one is enthroned in our memory,
And though he may be far away,
We pause to honor his service
And loving tribute we pay.
We pledge to each other allegiance
To keep class traditions alive;
We promise to seek to bring glory
To the Class of Forty-Five.
May our future be filled with achievement,
May some of us merit fame,
May all of us always bring honor
To our Alma Mater's name.

Tune—"Whispering"

Verse

When the twilight shadows are falling
And the weary world is at rest,
We'll remember happy days spent here
With all the friends whom we held dear.

Chorus:

Dear West York High, the time is coming
For us to say our fond farewell.
Each little mem'ry holds some meaning
Of all the years we have spent with you.
In days when we're striving in life's school,
We'll learn these years held so much value.
Though we would like to linger longer,
We must say our fond adieu.
For all our boys who've gone in service
We know that honors are deserving.
They went to help preserve our nation;
They left their school for the khaki, the blue.
We're praying for their safe returning,
Wishing that they could be here, too.
They're out there somewhere dreaming of you
As we say our fond adieu.

History of the Class of 1945

LONG AGO, four years to be exact, we, as awe-struck Freshmen, embarked on our high school career. Our new title, Freshmen, was unexcelled. There were then one hundred twenty-five of us.

As Sophomores we added to our prestige by buying felt goods in maroon and gold, our newly-chosen class colors.

During the month when the air is filled with the odor of burning leaves, black cats, and witches, we held the traditional Sophomore Hallowe'en Party, when pumpkin pie and cider with aspirin prevailed.

Our Junior year marked the arrival of our class jewelry, when we listened attentively to the announcements waiting for our initials to be called. We proudly displayed our rings and pins to those who wished to see them.

Finally, with much fanfare and little dignity, we entered our triumphant Senior year, to reign over the "Hallowed Halls of Knowledge."

Marking a new point in our history was the innovation of Senior Dances, their purpose being to teach the art of dancing to the inexperienced.

Another important occasion in our career as Seniors was the publishing of the "1945 La Memoria," second to none. Naturally, we chose our announcements and name cards.

Proof of our dramatic ability was revealed in our production of "Out of the Frying Pan."

Chemistry unknowns and typing perfect copies added to our worries as Seniors.

While Seniors, we noticed the effects of the man-power shortage as many of our boys so nobly heeded the call of our country. Our class had diminished to sixty-seven.

At last came that memorable and solemn event that symbolized the culmination of all our efforts—Commencement.

We humbly look to the future as we sadly leave school's life to go into life's school.

Secretary ..... MARIAN KERR
Adviser ..... A. H. MARTIN

FOR THE SEVENTH consecutive year, the Student Council faithfully performed its duties. Its aim to have greater student participation in school activities was realized through two amateur programs, student dances, and the observance of Leap Week.

Candidates for the presidency of the Student Council were Richard Glatfelter, Paul Eyster, and David Lillich, who made known their qualifications amid all the fanfare of true politicians.

The Council made several suggestions for the plans for the organization of a Teen-Age Center in West York.

As in previous years, letters were sent to the four hundred fifty servicemen of the alumni. The November letter was compiled under the supervision of Miss Anna L. Morris from letters written by each of the four classes; the February letter, by Miss Morris, J. Wesley Wise, Curvin F. Kopp, and C. A. Wentz; and the May letter, by a committee composed of Student Council members. The many letters received from the servicemen indicated how much they appreciated our letters. To show further respect to the servicemen an Honor Roll was secured.

Our most sincere wishes for Godspeed are extended to David Lillich, who, having fulfilled his duties most capably, entered military service in February.

UNDER THE LEADERSHIP of their new adviser, the Senior High Girl Reserves met the first Wednesday in October to elect their officers and plan their program for the coming year.

The first activity of this group was the Recognition Service held November 15th in the gymnatorium, with the Ninth and Tenth Grade Girl Reserve Clubs as guests.

The group's first service project was the folding of Christmas Seals for the York County Tuberculosis Society. At a meeting in December, they again served others, this time in making carol books for wounded servicemen in hospitals.

In January, Eddie Debes and His Orchestra played for the school dance sponsored by the Club.

Other activities included the sponsoring of an assembly program, bowling, a covered dish social at the Young Women's Christian Association, a visit to the York Historical Society, and a scavenger hunt.

The year's work closed with a business meeting on May 2nd, when the Club bade farewell to the Senior members of the organization.

Stage Crew Club

ANY AMBITIOUS dramatic organization considers its scenery a highly important part of its productions. With this view in mind, the Stage Crew Club aimed to handle that phase of dramatics. All students of West York High School were eligible for membership in the Club, and the interest shown on the part of the students was the responsible factor in the type of settings constructed for the plays this year.

Under the leadership of Richard Reiff, adviser and art teacher, the "crew" organized this year to consider set designing and lighting equipment.

No formal "school room" technique was attempted, and the art of painting scenery was learned by students through actual experience. Some new pieces were built with the idea in mind that they could be used in future productions. If the interest shown this past year continues, the Stage Crew Club will be achieving not only fascinating results, but results that will be contributing to the already high standard of the school.

With this goal in mind, the Club is attempting to organize into a unit which can specialize in supplying high quality stage sets for high school drama. The present conditions further induced the Club to supply articles which are almost impossible to procure by using available materials and a little ingenuity.

JOINING THE Junior High Dramatic Club was the beginning of a stage career for many lower classmen.

The aims of the Club were to develop personality and to improve diction and poise in public speaking, as well as to provide an opportunity for social contacts and entertainments.

On February 22nd, the Club presented an assembly program, having for its theme Patriotism and Courtesy. Three playlets, directed by Nancy Hood, Nancy Heilman, and Miss Kise, were presented.

To climax the year's activities, the Club held a theatre party.

AGAIN THE MIXED CHORUS proved themselves capable of presenting successful programs. The Mixed Chorus and the High School Band successfully sponsored A Night of Music in the gymnatorium on April 10th.

They also participated in the Seventh Annual Music Festival held this year at North York High School on May 4th. The combined chorus rendered "Hail to the Dawn," arranged from Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" (E. L. Ashford); "The Lord's Prayer" (Albert Hay Malotte); and "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" (Edmund Guber and Peter Wilhoosky).

The Chorus appeared in several assembly programs and the Baccalaureate Services.

OUR WEST YORK HIGH SCHOOL BAND has completed another successful year under the directorship of Harry Stenger. The Band, composed of forty musicians, aroused school spirit at football games and played for various assemblies. The favorite selections of the year, as shown by the appreciation of the audiences, were "Bolero Non" (Smutz) and "Charlotte Harbor Stomp" (Doffitt).

Majorettes Charmaine Joseph, Louise Wolfe, Mary Jane Kochenour, Lois Rohrbaugh, and Mary Jane Boone (a graduate of 1944) added much to the appearance of the band.

Collaborating with the Mixed Chorus, the Band presented band and choral music on April 14th in our gymnatorium.

Members of the Band participated in the Annual Music Festival held on May 4th at North York High School. Band selections presented at that time were "Bells of St. Mary" (Adams), "C. T. C. March" (Cline), "Bolero Non" (Smutz), and "That's An Irish Lullaby" (Shannon).

The last engagement of the band was the Commencement Program for the Class of 1945.

CHARACTER, service, leadership, and scholarship, the cardinal principles of the National Honor Society, were the standards upon which candidates from the Junior and Senior classes were selected once each semester for membership in the West York Chapter of the National Honor Society, which received its Charter in March, 1938.

To be eligible for membership, a candidate must have attained a scholastic average of ninety per cent throughout his high school career and have taken part in promoting the general welfare and upholding the ideals of the school.

A gold pin, representing the flaming torch, emblem of the Society, a membership card, and a certificate were presented to each pupil upon his recognition as a member of the Society.

Treasurer ..... JOYCE JACOBS

THIS YEAR the Library Club had the largest membership in its eleven years of service to the school. There were thirty-nine members, senior high students chosen from a number of applicants. Membership in the Club was based on dependability, scholarship, character, accuracy and general attitude.

Through efficient library service the members aimed to create an interest in books and reading among their fellow students as well as increasing their own knowledge of books and authors. Members worked as library assistants during their study periods, progressing from simple duties such as shelving books to the most responsible position of all, work behind the charging desk.

At the semi-monthly meetings, Mrs. Gulden gave instruction in library procedures and members discussed problems encountered in their work and reviewed new books. Purchase of symbolic pins for members highlighted the Club's year.

New members were selected by a faculty committee in May, and next year's officers were elected at the annual spring weiner roast.

THE JUNIOR RED CROSS started the year with a feeling of pride and importance as there were approximately 100 members.

Following the election of the president and secretary-treasurer (It is the custom to elect the president at the close of the preceding year.), the group immediately started its first project—collecting milkweed pods for use in making life-belts for the servicemen. Many of the boys and girls spent their evenings after school roaming the nearby fields in search of those "white fluffy flakes of cotton." They found this to be not only an interesting project, but a helpful one for the boys in the service as well as for themselves as they were outdoors all the while, taking in all of nature's beauty and goodness.

Library cards were made to be used by the servicemen in hospitals. Cartoon books and memorandum pads also were made to be sent to the boys. They were taken into the Red Cross Center and from there sent to different parts of the country and overseas.

For a social evening, the group held a much enjoyed skating party, one of the few entertainments of the year.

For the next project, they folded money calendars which were placed in envelopes which were stamped and addressed and sent to ministers all over the United States.

Boxes were also packed for the Russian War Relief. Pennies were contributed by all the members of the school. With these pennies, a committee composed of Junior Red Cross members purchased clothing to outfit a Russian girl. In addition, boxes containing toys and food were packed for other children overseas. As a special Christmas project, a Christmas table centerpiece was made for the boys in the service.

A hike early in May concluded the activities of a most successful year.

FAR SURPASSING MEMBERSHIP of former years, forty-eight ninth grade girls held membership in the Junior Girl Reserves in 1944–45.

Their service projects for the year included folding Christmas seals for the York County Tuberculosis Society and making favors for patients at the York Hospital at Thanksgiving. Also at Thanksgiving, the Reverend Clark Smith delivered a message to the Club.

For a recreational program the Club held a co-ed party in October, a covered-dish social in November, and a Christmas party in December. On December 18th, the girls joined other Girl Reserves of York to sing Christmas Carols at the Court House.

During the year, the Club had various advisers: Mrs. Charlotte Wantz, Miss Ruth Sawyer, former Girl Reserve Secretary at the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. Bernadette Koons, with Miss Anna Jane Brubaker assuming the adviserships in January.

Committee chairmen for the year were Program, Norma Eyster; Membership, Carlon Rinehart; Inter-Club Representative, Charmaine Joseph; Pianist, Janet Mae Myers; Publicity, Delores Kornbau; and Chaplain, Sylvia King.

THE TENTH GRADE Girl Reserves, until this year a part of the Senior Girl Reserves, participated in and enjoyed a number of activities, such as covered-dish socials held at the Y. W. C. A., folding Christmas seals, and singing Christmas Carols on the Court House steps with other Girl Reserves of York.

With their adviser, Mrs. Manon, the Club was successful in making their group an up-and-coming organization of West York High.

From the first meeting, which was mainly for election of officers, up until the last, the Club made its meetings interesting and eventful. They had speakers; for instance, Mrs. Bernadette Koons spoke to the girls on World Fellowship in connection with the Y. W. C. A. They also enjoyed such things as singing at meetings and skits enacted by the girls themselves.

If effort and cooperation are put forth in future years as they were this year, West York High will continue to have a successful Tenth Grade Girl Reserve Club.

FIFTY MEMBERS of the Junior High Glee Club met each Tuesday in order that they might become more appreciative of the finer music and so that they might qualify as future members of the Mixed Chorus.

The Club joined with the Mixed Chorus and High School Band to present a Night of Music in the gymnatorium on April 14th.

Selections rendered at the York County Music Festival at North York High School, on May 4th, under the direction of Mrs. Melvin Blish, Music Supervisor of the Spring Grove Schools, were "Torrents in Summer" (Edgar), "Magic Carpet" (Moore-Klen), and "Italian Street Song" (Herbert).

HEEDING THE CALL of popular demand, the French Club reorganized with thirty-five members on its roster.

Its object was to increase interest in and to study French customs, traditions and general activities. A program committee studied the special subjects to be presented and reported its findings to the Club. Discussions included a study of the French National Anthem, "La Marseilleise," and its author, Rouget de Lisle; French games—at this meeting Miss Senft read the letters and numbers in French so that the Club might play French Bingo; and the lives of several famous Frenchmen.

At a special Christmas party conducted in French, the Christmas story was told and special games were played and, of course, not to be slighted were the refreshments; however, they were strictly American delicacies.

Near the close of the year, the Club embarked upon an enjoyable evening hike with the usual fervor of the younger generation, working up an appetite worthy of well-done sissling "dogs" and toasted marshmallows.

PLACES! CURTAIN GOING UP! How often we heard that familiar and welcome cry of all Society people who have taken part in any kind of production presented on the stage. In many eyes we have seen the ambition of young and hopeful actors and actresses who want fame in the halls of West York High School.

During the months that the Society was not getting ready for productions, they spent their weekly meetings studying stage techniques.

The Society devoted itself to supplying the community with entertainment on the stage: in assemblies, at various organization meetings, and with its annual production.

Many Seniors left the Society this May, but they went with the satisfaction in mind that they had enjoyed many amusing times and experiences that they would not have experienced had they not belonged to the Society, and the realization that the faithful members will continue to uphold the standards of the Society.

WHEN COACH RICHARDS was inducted into the Navy last March, good judgment bade that the administration seek a coach. Richard "Moon" Walters, while teaching at Dover, coached the team after school hours, assisted by John Royer, ex-Franklin and Marshall fullback. The squad was small, only about thirty boys and all "fly-weights." The team that met Lititz in our first game had a 130-pound backfield with a 145-pound line. We couldn't expect too much—but the fellows were in there scrapping, and the spirit was good.

Ephrata handed the Bulldogs a 6–0 defeat in a home game. On the warm afternoon of September 30th, spectators at Enola witnessed a hard fought game, with the score a 0–0 tie—West York completing the most first downs and losing a field goal by inches.

In October, Lemoyne came to West York with a team that outweighed West York fifteen pounds per man. During the first half, Lemoyne scored twice. At the half ex-Coach Richards talked to his boys as he had done so many times before. With a new spirit the team came onto the field, playing its best but taking a terrific pounding, to carry the ball to and over the goal line.

In a night game at Biglerville, a reverse fake gave West York a touchdown on the opening play. Biglerville scored three times with a fighting spirit. Near the end of the game, Biglerville, forced back on its own 10-yard line, kicked a 70-yard punt. A West York back caught the pigskin and ran 90 yards for a touchdown.

West York defeated York High Reserves twice. At Elizabethtown, West York met a team of their own weight, but was nosed out 6–0. One week later, New Cumberland defeated the Bulldogs. However, West York did score against New Cumberland for the first time in many years.

The last game was played at home against Red Lion. In the first half, West York worried Red Lion, but in the second half Red Lion began a new offensive that defeated West York 26–0. At the Victory Dance, Robert Zartman received the trophy awarded the most valuable player, with Herbert Boyer and Robert Brown runners-up.

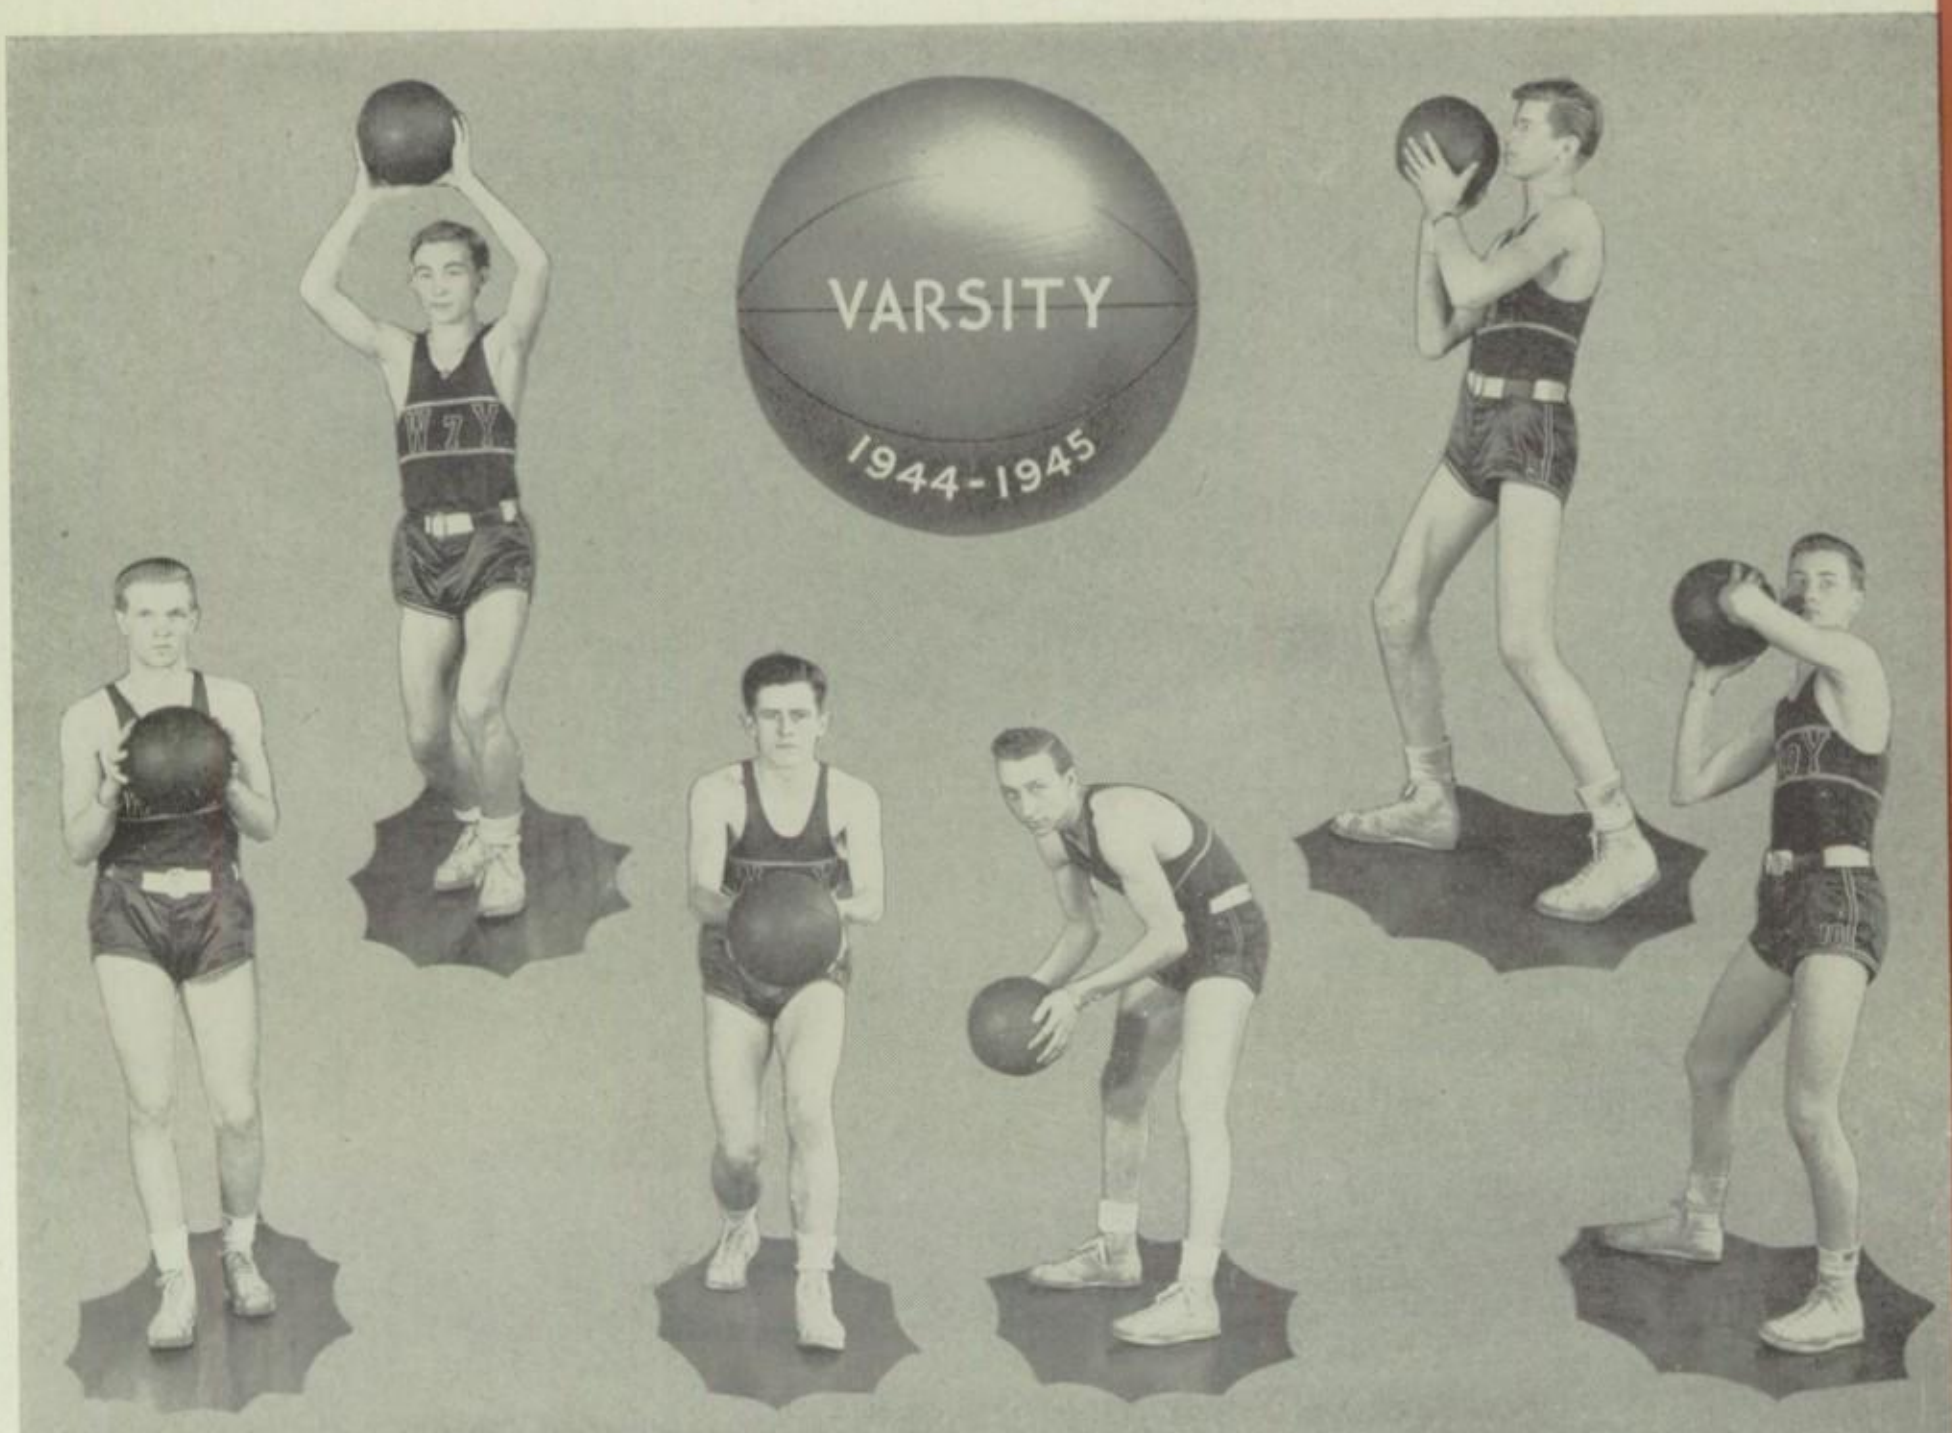
Senior High Basketball

ENTERING THE COURT on December 8th to begin its 1944–45 season in the York County Scholastic Basketball League, the team was rated by most people as being out of the race for league honors. At the mid-year, West York was already the victim of four or five games, three of the defeats in league competition. However, West York went on to win eight of the remaining nine league conflicts. During these games, York Catholic barely escaped with two victories, one 30–29 and another 29–27, earning the latter victory in an extra period.

York Catholic, a non-member of the P. I. A. A., captured the league title; therefore, both West York and Dallastown, tied for second place, represented the league in the P. I. A. A. play-offs; West York in Class A and Dallastown in Class B. However, West York and Dallastown clashed for unofficial possession of second place, West York winning 46–30.

In the Class A play-offs, West York met Chambersburg at Gettysburg College before some 1,500 people. As the first quarter ended, West York led 14–6, but the lead was cut to 18–16 at the close of the half. In the second half, West York lost her winning ways and the game ended with West York on the short end of a 56–35 score.

Richard Shelton captured second place in the league with 167 points, and Bill Brown captured third-place scoring honors in the league with 124 points. Shelton, Brown, and "Doc" Leib, varsity underclassmen, will be back next year.



To Herb. Boyer, Merle Berkheimer, Bob Zuver, and Carl Berkheimer, who have doffed their West York uniforms, we extend our sincere wishes for success.

Herbert Boyer received the honor of being voted the most valuable player on the 1944–45 team.

Coach A. B. Smith is to be complimented for pulling the team out of what could have been a disastrous season.

Junior High Basketball

AS THE Junior High Basketball Squad began its 1944–45 season in the York County Scholastic Basketball League, Coach Charles Rinehart sent an inexperienced team onto the court.

In their first game, the squad defeated North York to raise its hopes for a second consecutive championship team. But when the season closed the squad held second-place honors in the league, having registered ten victories and four defeats. The four defeats were handed her by Red Lion 30-28, Mt Rose 14-9 and 22-13, and North York 36-24. The team scored 424 points against its opponents 331 points. Rodney Joseph captured scoring honors with 102 points for the year.

The majority of the games were played by Captain Wilford Fourhman, Donald Markey, William Ketterman, Glen Frey, Robert Wagner, and Eugene Strausbaugh. These six fellows played good ball throughout the season and should be given much credit for their team work. Of these six, four left Junior High School this spring. Coach Rinehart should also be congratulated for his fine work.

Wrestling

COACH CLARK S. SMITH issued a call for wrestlers in early December. So few candidates reported that it seemed probable that wrestling would no longer be included in the sports activities of West York. However, when the squad competed in its first meet, vacancies existed in only the 133- and 185-pound classes—the first vacancy existing because Robert Brown, captain of the squad, was incapacitated because of an injury. However, Bob went into action on January 11th. Ineligibility of candidates caused the 185-pound class to be vacant most of the year.

The grapplers lost two of their first three matches, causing skepticism about the success of the season. But when the season closed, the groaners had lost but three meets and had won eight.

In the District Meet at Hershey, on March 10th, the team finished in second place. Herbert Marley, Donald Strausbaugh, Robert King, and Jack Deal were runners-up in their classes, while Jack Crawmer and Robert Brown took the championships in theirs.

Brown and Crawmer were eliminated in the preliminaries in the State Meet at Penn State on March 17th. Robert Miller, who represented Lancaster in the 120-pound class and who defeated Donald Strausbaugh in the District Meet with a 14-second time advantage, won his match at Penn State, becoming the first wrestler from District 3 to hold a state championship.

Girls' Basketball

ON NOVEMBER 17, forty-five optimistic girls reported to their coach, Miss Dorothy M. Ilgenfritz, for their first practice, confident that they could again duplicate the feat of the three previous teams.

The sextette was victorious in its first two games, but at the end of their first game with North York, West York was on the short end of a 49-26 score. This was the first of three defeats, the others being handed them by Dover 24-19 and 34-24.

West York stood third in the York County Scholastic Girls' Basketball League at the close of the season, having won six, lost three, and tied one game, the latter with North York 30-30. They also won two non-league games. Beverly Smith, Gloria Loyd, and June Altland, forwards, and Mary Warner, Lorraine Lentz, and Helen Christian, guards, generally formed the squad. Of these starting six, only Warner and Lentz will be back next year.

As a finale to the season, all candidates met at a banquet held at the Pine Tree Inn, in March. Gloria Loyd received the trophy awarded the most valuable player. Other participants received varsity letters and silver cups.

"OUT OF THE FRYING PAN," a comedy in three acts, written by Francis Swann, was presented by the Senior Class on April 6th and 7th.

The curtain arose on a very peculiar scene. George was discovered poised in the center of the stage throwing knives, centering the action around a play within a play.

The plot and action of the play centered in the living-room of a five-room apartment around the three girls and three boys who lived there hoping and praying for a brilliant break into the theatre. Mrs. Garnet, the landlady, pestered them continually for the rent, while they pestered Mr. Kenny, the producer, to give them roles in his play "Mostly Murder." During one such performance, two cops actually believed their assistance would be highly appreciated. As the curtain fell, two of the group were married, two more were in love, and they were to be in a road show of "Mostly Murder."

Harold Blatt and Earl Smyser, stage managers, and Phyllis Meyers and Mary Ellen Budesheim, property committee, assisted with the production.

"GROWING PAINS," a comedy in three acts, by Aurania Rouverol, was presented in the West York High School gymnatorium, December 16, 1944, by the members of the Citamard Society.

The entire action of the play took place in the patio of the McIntyre's residence in Northern California, in an unusual setting designed by Richard Reiff and constructed by Mr. Reiff and his Stage Crew Club.

The enactment told of the dilemma of the McIntyres, who saw their boy and girl tossed into the cataracts of adolescence and could help them only by giving directions for the turbulent course from a distance, advice which the egostical youth always reject, of course.

Those two kids, George and Terry, went through their throes in company with the neighborhood kids. But naturally, the last scenes were bright and promising.

Reminiscing

School Days! School Days! Never again can we say only sixty-nine more days until the end of school! As we reminisce, we realize that our school days at West York are completed. No more will we return to the classes and studies of 1945.

Our life has been broadened through education and as we leaf through our La Memoria of '45, memories become more clear and more dear of friends, teachers, and past activities.

We recall those days when Mr. Martin requested our presence in the office. With a feeling of fright, we entered the inner sanctum, only to find we had worried in vain. Mr. Martin isn't such a bad fellow after all—including his jokes.

But on some occasions Mr. Wentz summoned us to the office. Do you remember when Mr. Wentz told his Law and P. O. D. classes that when he couldn't afford to buy a car, he bought a Ford? Also, when we think of Mr. Wentz, we recall Senior Class meetings with Mr. Wentz's "Now, now, we should have more order here"—announcements, class flower, poem, song, and motto.

In the same vein of thought, we also remember the day Mr. Wentz told us his formula for staying awake while driving. For those who may some day need it, we thank you, Mr. Wentz, for: "If pinching yourself doesn't work successfully, stop the car and run around the car six times."

Then across the hall, in Room 5, we found Miss Morris's domain. There we squirmed through sessions of poetry: "Bells, Bells, Bells." Were you lucky (?) enough to see Miss Morris play—a "witch" in "Macbeth?"

Often welcome servicemen interrupted our classes, and there were many hahppy seniors when they consented to give thirty-minute talks on their experiences, and always Miss Morris would have a new, shiny dime for them. Another welcome diversion was the patients coming for treatment of minor ailments.

But then, one day, Miss Morris wasn't in her appointed place. Where was she? Out feeding birds! (Surely is a shame that roll of film couldn't have been developed.) On other days we reported to Miss Morris, during activity period, who had requested our presence only that day, even though other teachers had requested our presence in their rooms the day before. Why did we so fear her?

Memories of English class are many and varied, but one thing we'll always remember is Miss Morris's saying, "It's too hot in here," and her repeatedly telling us "when I don't know something, I'll tell you so."

Then we recall our language teachers. Our new teacher, Miss Elizabeth Senft, a graduate of West York, replaced Miss Margaret Connor, who gave up her teaching career to be an army wife.

French class we may connect with many good laughs and giggling spells, frequent side remarks, and the class's ability to get off the subject and drag things out. Miss Senft, upon asking the class why it was they were so silly, was told that it was due to the fact that it was the last class of the day and everyone was just plain slap-happy by then.

And the one teacher who has a place in many of our hearts is "Davy" Beckmyer. We'll always remember chemistry and "Davy" for the pledge of honesty that was to be put on our tests, his jokes, his word of dismissal, "Okyo," chemistry unknowns, and that one little word "Repeat;" also that lovely smell of rotten eggs billowing forth from the lab to penetrate into all regions of the second floor. If over the system we happened to hear a noiselike enemy interference, it was only a mixture of Mr. Beckmyer's singing and announcements.

Your BONDS Buy THIS BUY MORE TO-DAY

And then there was the day we didn't have to listen to the rendition of the "William Tell Overture" in music classes, because snowbound Miss Gentzler was home singing "Don't Fence Me In."

And Mr. Walker was kept mighty busy with that large bookkeeping class, totaling four. His words: "A word to the wise is sufficient" proved themselves to be correct, for well do we remember the morning we stood for fifteen minutes in the rain. Mr. Walker was a man of few words!

Strange things were revealed in Miss Orner's shorthand classes. The whole shorthand class, including Miss Orner but excluding Joe Black and ? ? ? , confessed their great pleasure in listening to Superman, Tom Mix, and Dick Tracy. One day when Lola May Boyer didn't have her mind on what she was reading in shorthand, she came to some "X" marks and asked, 'What are the kisses for?"

According to Miss Orner, you have not lived till you've eaten an Orner sandwich specialty made up of lettuce, peanut butter, tomatoes, pickles, a little meat, jam, onion, and mayonnaise with a glass of milk to wash it down.

Our thoughts wonder to Mr. Kopp, for he so often interrupted our shorthand classes to ask for a couple of sheets of paper. We were glad to see that new back fender after all the weeks he had been running around without one. "You talk too much," and "Are there any problems today?" seemed to be Mr. Kopp's favorite sayings. We often wondered if Mr. Kopp enjoyed Advanced Mathematics? The one thing that did irritate Mr. Kopp was to stick in 20 inches of snow at Anstine's Corner after driving from Loganville to West York with comparative ease.

Even though Mrs. Miller wasn't with us so many years, we do remember her stories of her husband's adventures, her facial expressions, and "Lizzie" (that little green car). Mrs. Miller really showed her patriotism by taking charge of the weekly War Saving Stamp sales.

And then there was the big romance that blossomed forth in our library. She looked at him and he looked at her, and the next thing we knew wedding bells were ringing and people were calling Miss Gray, Mrs. Harry O. Gulden. If Mrs. Gulden has acquired any gray hairs, we are sure it was from trying to keep the students quiet in the library.

That favorite home room teacher of academics was the genial Mr. Poff, whose age seems to be at a standstill. Mr. Poff was that character who introduced us to worms and frogs. How we loved the smell of formaldehyde. He was the "Pep" boy who amicably refereed that great struggle between Gertrude Chalfant and Glenn Zech in the clothes closet in Room 11 the evening after school when Glenn wanted to play post-office. Why did Mr. Poff give "Henry" a rest during the weeks of the great blizzard? Mr. Poff and "Davy" were the favorite male chaperons at dances.

Anyone who misses having Mr. Wise as a history teacher misses one of the finer things in life at West York, for Mr. Wise was one of the most understanding and sympathetic teachers we ever knew.

West York High has a lot to look forward to: particularly, the day when Mr. Smith's son will be high scorer on the basketball team. Then Mr. Smith won't have to worry over the outcome of the game and bite his nails down to the bone.

The members of the girls' basketball team surely recall the stiff talks given to them before and after games by the one and only dynamic Miss Ilgenfritz. Miss Ilgenfritz always told "Duck" not to be afraid to "bend" during a game. We think she did pretty good "unbent," don't you?

Replacing the sound of Miss Jeffery's tripping down the halls, we heard instead Mrs. Lentz's "I can make a stick act," and her pleading with the cast to learn their parts. And also there was that boon companion of Miss Jeffery, Miss Lucy I. Bott, who was succeeded by Mrs. Harry I. Manon.

We well remember the efficient but likable Mrs. Cloyd M. Criswell, before whom we didn't chew gum the second time in the library.

We had one vacation that undoubtedly should be marked in red ink in the records of West York High School. On January 16th, just before time for noon dismissal, we heard the buzzer buzz, indicating announcements to follow. Believe it or not, we were told that we would not have to return to school that afternoon because of the depth of the snow and that we should tune in to W O R K the next morning about 7:30 for word concerning school for that day. (P.S.: The word was unfavorable.) It took a number of the snowbounds, including Mr. Wise, several days to dig paths through the drifts.

It wasn't only snow that disrupted schedules, but also the rain which fell during the early hours of February 5th and froze so conveniently; therefore, even the buses weren't able to run on schedule. The result: a great deal of commotion in the halls about 9:30, when Miss Kise, Miss Morris, and Mrs. Manon came sliding in.

Those two little men down in the basement, the Messrs. Allen Zinn and C. H. Rinehart, won't fade from our memories, even though we didn't study under them in later years.

Substituting for C. C. Richards, Jr., during our senior year was Mrs. Mary Ault. Something new was added to West York with the organization of the stage crew, sponsored by Richard E. Reiff. One unfillable vacancy in the Manual Training Department was caused by the resignation of Alvin E. Souerwine. The boys certainly missed those jaunts down to the annex.

The canteen, which opened in 1943, by selling candies, soft drinks, sandwiches, and soup to lunchers, grew into a full-fledged bristling cafeteria in our senior year, being most capably supervised by Mrs. Weirman. Toward noon each day aromas of mouth-watering foods permeated the corridors tending to divert thoughts of students and occasionally teachers from the upper extremities to the abdominal regions. In a remarkably short time after the final noon bell had rung, you would see long lines of hungry students and teachers move along the counters filling their trays. Sometimes above the din of conversation and clinking utensils, you could hear the crash of a milk bottle, which some inept juggler had tilted off his or her tray.

Do you remember those pious substitutes, the Reverends Clark Smith and William Kelly? Mr. Smith, literally, spent half the school year with us; for it seemed when he wasn't keeping order, you could find him near a wrestling mat.

Our mind wanders on to those interesting people who turned their teachers hair gray and created many laughs, the Seniors.

Foremost among those funsters was Joe Black, who continually rocked back on his chair and more often than not landed on the floor.

Then came "Bluebeard" Glenn Zech, minus his wives, who took such great pride in his long underwear that he frequently lifted his trousers to display it in P. O. D. class.

We all remember Francis Smyser, the great lover in the Senior Class Play, who admitted to being dumb because all he knew was that he loved us.

Oh, yes! That little black heap in the snow when investigated by Glenn Zech turned out to be none other than Louise Walterick.

Then there's that loud little vixen Betty Smith, who, by some unconceivable means, kept her book open during P. O. D. class without getting caught.

Remember Conrad Strine, who wasn't taught in the Navy the meaning of a monogamous family and was quite perplexed at finding the term in a mid-year exam?

We'll never forget the wild election campaign for a school president. Bookmarks, posters, and well-seasoned cigars abounded. The question asked by all was "Does your cigar taste different lately?"

If we ever needed to know anything, we could always count on Mae Landis's knowing all the latest gossip. One who ran Mae keen competition was Janet Glatfelter.

When Betty Shaub said "I care for that," did she mean her romance with David Lillich?

When the names Gladys Hill and Roberta Nace are recalled, we remember them for selling meal tickets for the cafeteria each morning in the office. Was Gladys the one who met a black and white pussy in the entrance early one morning to her sorrow?

Two exceptions among the man-hunting senior girls were Carolyn Myers and Beverly Smith. They seemed to have had the situation well in hand.

David Joseph ably answered chemistry questions that stumped the rest of us.

Mary Ellen Budesheim capably tingled the ivories during various assembly programs.

We are proud of our co-editors, Carolyn Kerr and Paul Eyster, who added to the success of our La Memoria. But we did wish the staff could have afforded to buy Paul a new hat to replace that old dilapidated gray felt.

We often wondered why Donald Hoke was termed "Foxie." Wasn't he quite the wolf?

Conrad Strine and Harry Gulden, two returned veterans of the senior class, never seemed to have much difficulty in acclimating themselves to our way of doing things again.

Betty Rudisill told us her favorite saying was whatever she "thought" of first. Who were you trying to kid, Betty?

Beverly Smith usually told an excited friend to "take it easy." Thanks, Beverly, for helping us to obtain some of our material.

When Harold Blatt was taken into the Honor Society, we wondered if they knew about his romantic way of pronouncing "Sylvia." His version was "Saliva."

There were some sounds heard here in school which you might have recognized. Bob Zartman, an honorary member of the Senior Girl Reserves, was skilled in the art of expressing his thoughts through sound when a girl passed by, and we might add that practically all the rest of the boys had ability along that line. Could that funny hissing sound have been Jane Nease blowing a fuse when something went wrong? Did she create a shortage?

The "sixty-four-dollar question" among the girls was (and still is), "Hey, did you get any mail?" It made no difference if you spelled that "mail" or "male."

That brave group of students who furnished such symphonic musical arrangements as "The Moon Upon the Mississippi," "Don't Fence Me In," and many others were the accomplished "Blue and White Imperials," managed by that great executive Jimmy "Orson" Wells. Members were Paul Eyster, Dave Lillich, Carl Berkheimer, Walter Horner, Robert Fry, Jay Yost, Clair Boyer, Philip Schmohl, Glenn Lehman, Mary Ellen Budesheim, Gertrude Chalfant, George Giesler, and Richard Glatfelter. When Sherman Haas joined the Marines, John Brillhart, a Hanoverian, played the drums.

With the memory of their sweet music running through our minds, let us turn to the "sweetest story ever told—ah, yes—'tis 'Love'." If you have kept up with the romance of the Class of "45," you may remember the fair maiden who in a moment of passion said to her beloved, "Squeeze the wind out of me." I'm sorry; you will have to consult the grapevine for names.

And then we had Robert Brown, alias "Casanova," who went around when in need and collected advice to try to keep his love life running smoothly, and by the note-book full of poems we found written about Bob by an admirer who seemed very far gone, we'd say he's doing all right. How did you do it, Bob? The alternating current existing between Gertrude Chalfant and Bob caused much wonder among the seniors. We never knew whether it was going to be off or on that particular day.

Joe Black, whose favorite saying was "if you say so," had his girls trained so that they would call him on the 'phone to ask his permission to go out with another fellow.

"Night and Day" Zuver had trouble keeping the usual crease in his trousers. The girls just couldn't seem to find any place to sit but on his lap.

Helen Christian's favorite reply was, "Yes, Dear." Meaning whom?

Glenn Lehman's usual saying was, "Do you still love me?" Won't some strong brave girl please say "yes" and make Glenn happy?

We could also use another straightforward person to tell Jack Walheim how he looked with a crew hair cut and whether or not his clothes combination was as harmonious as he thought it to be.

Earl Smyser, who announced his presence by saying, "Here I come, you lucky people," often asked, "Can you read my writing?" Earl was such an optimist!

Upon asking Ed Moul what his favorite saying was, the answer was: "Heh! Heh!" What did you mean by that, Ed?

Charmaine Zimmerman, when being teased by Robert Zuver, often said, "Aw, come on now!" Zuver was all for it and wanted to know where they were going?

Francis Smyser in his usual cooperative mood would reply, "Why not?" Knowing Francis, there were many reasons.

Marianna Miller, the complimentary type, often asked: "Is that your face?"

Jan Hollander, of Holland, told us in assembly: "In America you are taught that the Hague is the capitol of Holland. But I was born in Amsterdam, and I have lived in Amsterdam most of my life; therefore, I should know that Amsterdam is the capitol of Holland."

L. A. Francisco, special agent for the F. B. I., was asked, "Do you have many cases of Juvenile Delinquency?" during another interesting assembly.

Now we pause to pay tribute to two faculty members who gave their lives for our country, Chalmers Wenrich and Luke Sauder.

When Mr. Sauder entered the service, we had a long succession of substitute teachers: Mrs. Robert Knupp, Miss Betty Jane Shaull, and Mrs. Roy Gibbons, the later providing a bit of diversion in Orientation by insisting that we acquire our rhythm by typing to music. Mr. Wenrich succeeded Miss Claire Lichty and assisted Mr. Richards in football.

We also had a file of art teachers: Luke Heath, who taught us the fundamentals of art, and his successors, Mrs. Donald King, Mrs. Inez Dunnick Smith, and Mr. Reiff.

Another innovation in West York High School was the Junior High School Promotion Exercises held May 23, 1945.

We recall the Senior Class Party that was held in honor of those boys in the Class of '45 who were soon to leave us for the armed forces. The two boys who were leaving at that particular time were Glenn Zech and David Lillich. If we should measure the fun had by everyone by the amount of noise that was made, we would say that the party was a success. The sources of fun were dancing, games, eating, and that all-time indoor sport, Post-Office. Due to the coal shortage that year, we could not hold the party at school. So we appreciated very much the use of the Wells's mansion and the cooperation of Mr. and Mrs. Wells in chaperoning.

We remember the other good times we had at senior dances, the plays, and games.

With a mixture of pride, joy, and sorrow, we remember Commencement, May 22, 1945, and the Senior Class Dinner-Dance. Although a number of our classmates were serving our country and couldn't be with us, our hearts remembered and thoughts of them became more clear and more dear. We wished them Godspeed.

Time marches on, but these memories will ever linger in our hearts.

Class Prophecy

We, the Class of '45, are turning our television set ahead ten years to see what Fate has in store for us. Join us and take a peek.

Ah, the tubes are warming up and the scene is beginning to appear rather blurred. It's clearing now.

Yes, Class, it's Jimmy Wells, our president, who has become very successful in his work. He has become manager of the Super Street Cleaners. Jimmy, alias Orson, and his co-workers, Earl Warner, Carl Berkheimer, and Frances Smyser, are busily cleaning the streets of Peacetown, the new, big little city, which has been donated to its inhabitants, the Class of '45, by that wealthy politician, Jack Walheim, who, incidentally, has made himself mayor of the city.

In the heart of the business section of Peacetown, we see the office of that well-known newspaper, "Daily Gossip," edited by Paul Eyster. His wife, Doris Snyder, writes the Helpful Hints column and is now working on a cream to stimulate the growth of eyelashes. Yes, Doris is still minus those long, black, curly things that usually line peoples' eyes. Some of the reporters for "Daily Gossip" are June Altland, Louise Walterick, Betty Altland, and Gladys Hill. Betty Smith, the mouthpiece behind the organization, does a little bit of everything.

Also in the business section is the Bachelor Black's office, where chief executive Joe Black is dictating to his two secretaries, Helen Christian and Carolyn Kerr. Due to a shortage of chairs (?), Helen and Carolyn are sitting on Joe's knees. It looks as though business is sadly lacking. We wonder why. ? ? ?

In the outer office, typists Phyllis Myers, Anna Mae Fry, Loretta Klinedinst, and Velma Kornbau are punching the keys of typewriters manufactured by Glenn Nicholas and Sons.

Peacetown's one and only night club is run by Bob Zartman. Right now he is featuring George Geisler and his Giggolos, including Merle Berkheimer, Clair Boyer, William Becker, and Herb. Boyer. The specialty dancer is Beverly Smith, who slings hash on the side. Glenn Zech, the headwaiter, is getting laughs from the patrons as he stands around with that usual dumb look on his countenance. The hat-check girl, Lola Boyer, just can't seem to figure out who's who in hats.

Playing at Peacetown Theatre is that movie, recently banned by the Reverend Richard Gladfelter and his reformers, starring the violent lovers, Donald Hoke and glamorous Carolyn Myers. Making her debut on the stage is Mary Ellen Budesheim, Queen of Jazz.

The notable banker, Harry Gulden, has his bank located in the Square of Peacetown. Conrad Strine is chief bouncer, so beware of bouncing checks!

Bank accountants, who can't figure out from where all the money comes, are Charmaine Zimmerman, Carl Holtzapple, Ruth Luckenbaugh, and Florence Bollinger.

Out in the suburbs of Peacetown is the Bring 'Em Back to Life Hospital. The head nurse, Mae Landis, is breaking in student nurses or throwing them out. At present Dr. Jane Nease is experimenting on a plan to eliminate appendicitis.

One of the patients, Eugene Lease, has just had another fit and his nurse, Hattie Miller, is running down the hall after him. Dr. Robert Frey is also on the run. Other nurses who are cooling the patients' fevered brows are Roberta Nace, Betty Rudisill, Audrey Julius, Janet Glatfelter, Ruth Stough, and Ruth Shubert.

Far from the quiet of the hospital is Peacetown College, where Ed Moul reigns as president. Dave Joseph is trying to beat chemistry into the heads of Master of Arts anticipants, including Earl Smyser, who is trying to figure out if $2 + 1 = 2$ or $2 + 1 = 3$, and Doris Schiding, who has other things on her mind. Betty Shaub is teaching languages; Mary Martin, music; and Harold Blatt heads the commercial department. Gloria Loyd, the gym teacher, coaches an undefeated girls' basketball team. In assembly today the guest speaker is the handsome Admiral David Lillich, of the U. S. Navy.

Bob Brown, poet and author, has just made a fortune on his new condensed edition of "How to Develop a Smooth Line in Ten Easy Lessons," strictly for the male sex.

Peacetown's Y. M. C. A. is run by Glenn Lehman, who is now instructing his class of Middle-Aged Musclebounds composed of Donald Gemmill, Jere Stabley, Donald Fahs, and Bob Zuver.

The married women of Peacetown organized the Happy Housekeeper's Club to gather and get the latest gossip. Its members include Betty Copenheaver, Marian Kerr, Ethel Garber, and Marianna Miller, who were lucky enough to snag a man.

Gertrude Chalfant directs an all-star singing revue with Lois Mowery, Rosella Wagner, and Dorothy Kerchner as soloists. Someone told them they should be on the air so Gertrude bought Peacetown's radio station. That must be the reason no one owns a radio in Peacetown.

Horrors ! ! The television set just blew a fuse! The scene is once more blurring as Peacetown again fades into the future.

Will of the Class of 1945

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1945, WEST YORK HIGH SCHOOL, BOROUGH OF WEST YORK, COUNTY OF YORK, AND STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

BE IT REMEMBERED, THAT WE, the Class of 1945, polygamists and bigamists, Borough of West York, County of York, State of Pennsylvania, being of unsound minds, hot air, crazy ideas, short memories, flighty character, moranic mentalities, unprintable laziness, and unscrupulous politicians, do make and publish this our first and last will and testament, hereby revoking and nullifying any and all former wills and testaments, or writings in the nature thereof, by us at any time heretofore made.

FIRST: We direct that our funeral shall be of the cheapest in character and not in keeping with our station in life and that all our class debts be fully paid and satisfied as soon as conveniently may be after our decease by the Class of 1946.

SECOND: To the School Board, we express our sincere appreciation for the extension of Senior Week. To the janitors, we extend appreciation and bequeath to them floors free from paper and desks free from nicks and scratches.

THIRD: To the teachers, we express our sincere thanks for everything you have given us to build a better life and for your graciousness in giving us passing grades.

FOURTH: To the Junior Class, we bestow our Senior Dances and success in your yearbook of 1946. To the other undergrads, we extend our left-over gray matter, if we have any.

FIFTH: To the following lucky or unlucky individuals, we wish to will the designated personal traits.

First, with sympathy and understanding, Audrey Julius delivers her hair-twisting ability to Mr. Zinn. Robert "Casanova" Brown wishes to confer his power to make girls swoon to Marlin Shive, lucky boy! Anna Mae Fry wills a larger bookkeeping class in the future to Mr. Walker. Gladys Hill bequeaths her southern drawl to Mr. Wentz. Mae Landis relinquishes her cowboying to Jean Good.

Second, Betty Shaub wishes personally to give her wool-lined boots to Miss Morris to replace her anklets. Robert Fry transmits his quietness to Joe Leonard; Marian Kerr confers her ability to get and keep her man to Elaine Massimore; Beverly Smith hands her sense of humor to anyone who needs it.

Third, Harry Gulden surrenders his way of staying in the library to Jake and Lee Zellers; Hattie Miller donates her studiousness to Reggie Lease; Jane Nease wills her cute blushes to Miss Orner. Roberta Nace sends her freckles to Louise Wolfe, and Earl Warner generously gives his ableness for eye patrol of girls in the halls to Richard Shelton.

Fourth, Glenn Zech doubtfully gives his other half of wit (?) to Lindy Klinedinst. Lois Mowery leaves her undesirable habit of being late to the future students of Room 11; Betty Smith reluctantly gives her "big" mouth to Wayne Burkhart; Dorothy Kerchner bequeathes her quick way of obtaining illegals in Gym classes to Martha Damey; and June Altland donates her "necking technique" to Pat Foose, as if she needs it.

Fifth, Gertrude Chalfant gives her natural and sweet smile to Lois Rohrbaugh. Florence Bollinger and Marianna Miller bequeath their curly hair to Davy Beckmyer. Robert Zuver leaves his fourteen-mile hike (to North York) to Bill Brown; Betty Copenheaver bestows her different "wrong way" to play basketball to Miss Ilgenfritz; and Glenn Lehman relinquishes his lifting ability to Charles Atlas.

Sixth, "Muscles" Harold Blatt wills his Puff Wheat Sparkies box-tops to Dale Gross. Mary Martin and Ruth Stough give their mannerisms to Margaret Kerchner and Richard King. Loretta Klinedinst leaves her slimness to Charmaine Bentz. Lola May Boyer gives her man-hunting energy to Lorraine Lentz, and Betty Rudisill hands her ability to fall for Juniors to any unlucky future Senior.

Seventh, Carolyn Myers gives her long distance 'phone calls from that "big" moment to Hannah Robinson. Mary Ellen Budesheim lends her skill in piano playing to Miss Gentzler. David Joseph leaves his brains for chemistry to Ronald Leib, and Rosella Wagner unwillingly bequeaths her "Million-Dollar Legs" to Mildred Schrum.

Eighth, David Lillich wills his Saturday night trips to Shrewsbury on schedule to the Shrewsbury bus. Louise Walterick leaves her shortness to Jim Silar; Charmaine Zimmerman gives her naval base of sailors to Nancy Altland; Velma Kornbau donates her ability to take trips on school time to anyone who needs it, and Clair Boyer wills his laugh to any old nag who may want it.

Ninth, Paul Eyster gladly gives his egotistical attitude to whoever may be unlucky enough to receive it. William Becker relinquishes his absenteeism to Charlie Cook. Betty Altland leaves her excellent typing ability to Paul Summers. Joe Black gloatingly leaves his shorthand method to Stewart Smyser, and Donald "Foxy" Hoke bequeaths his wolfing prowess to Paul Myers.

Tenth, Jack Walheim aversidly leaves his corny jokes to Mr. Martin (doesn't want to). Jere Stabley unhappily gives his "sickness" every Friday afternoon to James Burkins; Robert Zartman bestows his football technique to "Moon" Walters for a successful team next year; Carl Berkheimer gives his trombone slides to Harry Reynolds. Jim Wells leaves his towering height to the Empire State Building.

Eleventh, Gloria Loyd gives her ability to play basketball to Hester Deardorff; Earl Smyser leaves his feminine appeal to Bill Bubb; Ruth Luckenbaugh donates her V's and W's to Ruby Senft; Edward Moul gives his lankiness to Evi Rohrbaugh; Conrad Strine willingly transmits his bouncing ability to Miss Senft to bounce out future French students who get off the subject.

Twelfth, Donald Gemmill gives his ability for managership to Glenn Aldinger; Ethel Garber leaves her snow shovel to Mr. Wise (that is, if it snows again); Ruth Shubert gives her high pitched voice to Avelleon Little, and Carolyn Kerr leaves her bangs to Norma Hull, Norma Eyster, and Dorothy Byrne.

Thirteenth, Doris Snyder bestows her fiery temper and the Glockenspiel to Harriet Hershner; Carl Holtzapple transfers his long distance to school and his ability to be tardy to Helen Wentzler; Helen Christian removes her lustrous black hair for Marian Behler; Phyllis Meyers leaves her chicken-pox to whoever needs a vacation; Doris Schiding gives her domestic ability to Mrs. Gulden; Francis Smyser leaves his ability to be caught in curfews to Eugene Brady, and Merle Berkheimer donates his sleepiness on Monday mornings to Robert Fake and his cigarettes to A. B. Smith.

In Witness Whereof, We have set our hands and seal unto this, our last will and testament, this twenty-first day of May, Anno Domini One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-Five.

(Seal) Class of 1945.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the above-named testatrix, as and for her last will and testament, in the presence of us, who, in her presence, at her request, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto affixed our names as attesting witnesses.

Myrtle Moonface,

Gertie Gumpslumpdump.

Your happy days are passing by,

Faculty of West York High

You've heard some talk of the "Nine old men,"
More said of the allied "Big Three;"
But let me tell of a group I know,
Which numbers twenty-three.

They work together in West York High
On issues that seem miles apart;
They see each other but once in a while,
However, they're one at heart.

Martin, the Super., has the patience of Job,
C. A. Wentz is rather pious,
The others are fine, but human, indeed,
As those few learn who try us.

In the art department is Mr. Reiff,
So kind and helpful to all;
He seems to be general utility man,
At every one's beck and call.

The commercial department has its "Big Three,"
Names: Walker, Orner and Miller,
Judging by the results of their work,
Each must be a very fine driller.

"Don't live to eat," Mrs. Wierman says,
But when we taste her ware,
We'd scarcely stop at "Eat to live,"
If there is more to spare.

The social studies; those deeds of men,
Just facts without surmise,
Are taught each day, in a clever way,
By Manon, Ault, Zinn and Wise.

In the language unit is one sure prop,
She's a product of West York High;
A better than Betty could not be found,
No matter how hard we try!

Away in the library, on the top floor,
Among those volumes of fame,
Abides Miss Gray, who one cold day,
Decided to change her name.

There's mathematics, that wonderful science
Which few ever learn enough;
It's taught by Miller, Rinehart and Kopp,
Who surely know their stuff!

Music with its charm to soothe
Has two parts: band and voice;
The first directed by Stenger, H. C.,
The latter, Miss Gentzler's choice.

Who has his health, he has his wealth,
As Smith and Ilgenfritz know;
In class they work like right and left arm,
In sports, put on a good show.

In the science unit, another "Big Three"
They're assuredly nonpareil
Of Rinehart, Poff, and Davy B.,
The alumni in letters tell.

The teachers of English, I've left 'till last,
They are Morris, Kise, and Lentz,
And if I speak too well of their work,
I trust you won't take offense!

Less administrative and service support,
Our school would be unstable;
So here's to our janitors, Will, and Cy,
Our officials: Stump, Shambaugh and Gable.

An Excerpt from a Letter to Our Servicemen

Members of the Student Council say:
Write those folk in the service today
Of what we do, and what we say;
How we work and how we play
In their Alma Mater while they're away,
Doing their best to have us stay;
So this committee they did choose
To do the act called "Spreading the News."

Mr. Kopp will expand on what we eat;
Mr. Wise explain the skill of the athlete;
C. A. W. will tell Who's Who;
While A. L. M. tries to add something new.
Our school day is now 8:30 to three;
From that time on the groups are free,
Excepting those who don't know the score,
For them it is half an hour more.

Since Seniors are first to come and to go,
Let's talk of their February show,
"Out of the Frying Pan," but not in the fire;
To break into drama is their desire.
This isn't easy without finances,
So a heroine's father takes all chances—
To New York he goes to learn the truth;
Gives up by saying: "What's the use?"

When high ambition and love unite,
To oppose such a nation would end in a fight.
Shakespeare said: "All's Well That Ends Well!"
After the play the proceeds will tell;
For drama's not only a collation of deeds;
It needs something else called proceeds.
To Mrs. Lentz, the coach, we say "Good Speed;"
From former experience we know what she'll need.

Commencement announcements, hot off the press,
Are using maroon and gold for their dress;
The grade of paper is rather rough,
Indicating they don't have the "stuff."
Just a single fold, which is rather new,
They require one envelope instead of two;
However, they're clever, the class is glad;
We use what we have, not what we had.

Let me see! What is next on the list?
The dances have been completely missed.
They're numerous this year, the Seniors aver;
With their opinions I must concur,
For news from the office each morn or noon;
"A dance tonight, or very soon."
Eddie Debes, with his helpers nine,
Furnish the music for the good time.

Fridays at noon, there are dances for all,
Perhaps to keep "loafers" out of the hall.
Blue-White Imperials, a school orchestra,
On occasions for these dances play.
Senior Girl Reserves, last month, had their fling;
Senior Class, in February, will take a swing;
They plan to have several dances alone,
While lower classmen sigh and groan!

The object of this is to teach boys to dance;
At such I wouldn't have a chance.
Didn't gather rose buds while I might;
So at this age I'm resolved to sit tight.
I really must end this silly jingle
While waiting for the bell to tingle,
Before such happens—To one and all,
I hope you'll be home before next Fall!

Inside Dope on a Staff Meeting

What goes on at a staff business meeting? Everything, but business. A very special staff meeting is usually held a few weeks before the deadline to polish off the articles handed in and to stimulate the brains of those whose articles are overdue.

Everyone of the staff, especially the adviser, has high expectations to complete everything at the meeting, so he can sit back and take it easy until the yearbooks come out.

Lo and behold! ! It's five minutes before 2 o'clock and the meeting is at two. Members of the staff can be found at their respective homes rooting around for their lipstick in those condensed versions of suitcases called pocketbooks, or howling for a clean towel as they grope around with soap-blinded eyes in the bathroom. Still others are busily drying the last of the dinner dishes and in their hurry, break a few.

Finally, they are on their way, singing a light-hearted tune with thoughts that soon their dearly beloved yearbook will be ready to sail off for the press.

The unlucky first arrival at the adviser's house finds herself with a tea towel in one hand and a sinkful of dishes at the other hand. As they are put away, others of the staff straggle in and all are present a half-hour after the designated time.

There is a shuffle and bustle as all find seats. Papers are scattered on a table as business proceeds. By that time one of the staff discovers some delicious hard pretzels and all set to work to break a few teeth. Their throats become dry, so cokes are brought in to quench their thirsts; everyone scrambles for an extra ice cube.

Everyone is given an article to count. Amidst the chatter some lose count and engage in a choice bit of gossip before starting over again.

Then one or two of the staff gets fidgety and adjourn to another room while the adviser turns the radio on louder. When they get back, another takes his turn, while the rest talk, giggle, and, in general, do nothing.

Again, we are seated and a special feature is read which reminds someone of something else. Another period passes in which everyone talks at once and says nothing.

After the feature has been read, corrections are made and plans suggested to lengthen it. About this time one of the members must leave and there is more voice while everyone bades him farewell.

Then the class prophecy is read between corny jokes and the relating of some funny experiences.

A few more discover that it is time for them to depart. The few that are left decide to make a night of it and comfortably wait while one goes for ice cream.

At last, nightfall has spread its darkness and the meeting is brought to an end.

Did we get anything accomplished? Well, no—but we expect to next week. Anyway, everyone had loads of fun!
